

Match-day mobile attention is fragmented and passive.

One match. Multiple disconnected screens.

Most football fans watch matches with a phone in their hand, but that attention is fragmented across group chats, score apps, and social media.

Broadcasters, sponsors, and sports communities reach these fans, but rarely turn that match-day attention into measurable participation.

Currently, the fan experience is predominantly passive: they watch a feed instead of playing the unfolding match together.

VIRA — The synchronized multiplayer engagement layer.

VIRA transforms authoritative football moments into synchronized multiplayer challenges powered by TxLINE.

Instant Access:

Fans enter instantly as guests with no wallet, OAuth, payment, or installation required.

Real Authority:

Unlike generic dashboards, VIRA uses TxLINE as the primary data source for fixtures, odds, and live pitch observations.

From attention to action: The participation loop.

A B2B2C engagement layer focused on measurable metrics.

Measurable Funnel

VIRA tracks a clear engagement funnel:

Partner Value

Brands move from passive logo impressions to being part of a synchronized social decision loop during high-attention match moments.

Revenue Streams:

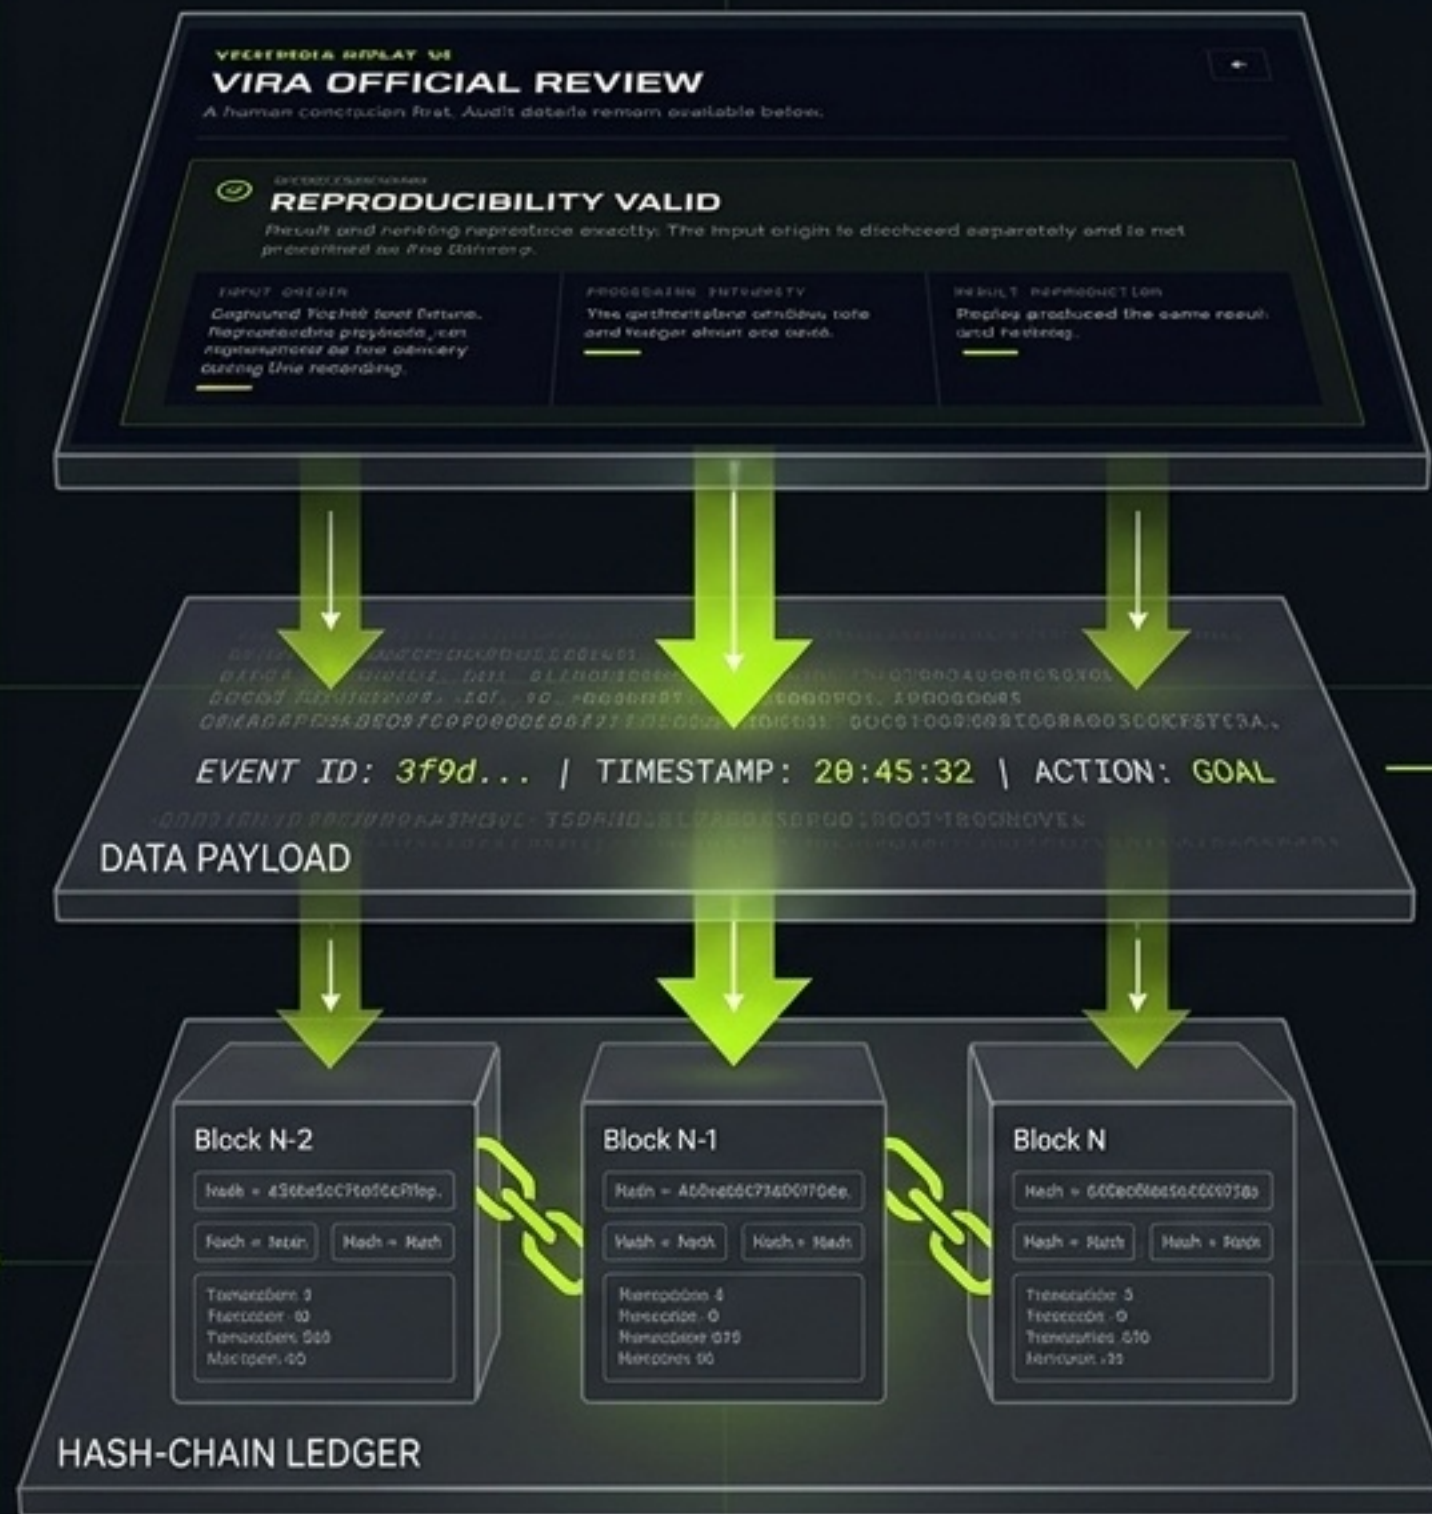

Sponsored Match Rooms

Tournament Packages for full competitions

Creator Mini Leagues for communities

White-label solutions for clubs and rights holders

Trust, Transparency, and Execution.

VIRA Official Review

Every verified result is reproducible from an append-only, hash-chained event ledger, ensuring total transparency for fans and partners.

Mainstream Positioning

Focused purely on social engagement and entertainment—no money, betting, or token purchases are part of the consumer experience.

Built for Live Operation

A functional single-instance deployment with real-time SSE, persistent state, a responsive PWA, and deterministic football conditions.
